

Lewis Wins Most Demands As Soft Coal Strike Ends

By HAROLD W. WARD
Washington, May 30 (AP)—The soft coal strike is over.

John L. Lewis won a $1.85 a day boost, a health and welfare fund and nearly everything else he asked for his 400,000 bituminous miners.

The public caught the vision of an uninterrupted flow of post-war automobiles, radios, refrigerators and gadgets from long-troubled assembly lines. But the public also got a bigger coal bill.

President Truman watched Lewis and Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug sign the contract late yesterday in a White House ceremony that ended the last major barrier to full-scale industrial output.

Resume Production Monday
Lewis' anthracite miners are due to walkout at midnight tonight, but hard coal is used primarily for heating homes.

And a nationwide maritime strike is threatened for June 15, but the domestic market will quickly grab everything American industry can turn out for months to come.

Lewis said the bituminous pits will be in full operation by Monday. The strike lasted 59 days—broken only by a two-week truce when it was at the peak of its staggering impact.

When the government will be able to return the mines to their owners remained a question. The operators—contending they were advised of the contract terms only a couple of hours in advance of the actual signing—were painedly displeased.

Five-Cent Royalty
The government seized the mines nine days ago and immediately got down to bargaining with Lewis. Out of those talks came these principal contract terms:

1. An 18 1/2-cent an hour wage increase (Please Turn to Page 7)

Hard Coal Pits Close As 60-Day Soft Coal Fuss Is Terminated

New York, May 30 (AP)—As the lengthy strike of 400,000 soft coal miners came to an end, Pennsylvania's 76,000 anthracite diggers quit work today to await a new contract with the operators.

The present pact expires at midnight tonight. However, the work stoppage became effective for all practical purposes early today since no mining operations were scheduled for the Memorial Day holiday.

Leaders of John L. Lewis' AFL United Mine Workers rejected yesterday an operators' resolution which would have continued the present contract for 30 days on a retroactive pay basis and served formal notice that the miners would not return to work without a contract.

Demand Contract
The union traditionally has adhered to a "no contract, no work policy."

Thomas Kennedy, UMW secretary-treasurer, predicting it would take three or four days to reach an agreement "if we apply ourselves," explained the union's stand in rejecting the extension proposal by saying:

"The policy of remaining at work on a retroactive basis with mounting liabilities would be an obstacle to the making of an agreement rather than an impetus."

Two subsequent operators' proposals—one for extension of the contract for 15 days and another for extension for a week—also were turned down, said J. B. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Navigation Coal company and operators' spokesman.

Commenting on the union stand, Warriner said "the mounting obligations would be on the operators and there would be none on the miners that I can think of."

Accept Resolution
Both sides, however, agreed to a miners' resolution that "such firemen, engineers, pumpmen, maintenance men and men in similar capacities as may be required in their regular line of work" should continue on the job on a retroactive basis.

Kennedy declared the union would expect the agreement reached between the union and the government in the bituminous talks to provide the pattern for the anthracite settlement.

But members of the operators' negotiating committee, who declined to be identified, said they had two main reservations about the soft coal settlement as a model to be followed in anthracite.

One was that the agreement had been worked out with the government and not with the bituminous operators. The other was that soft

230 ALUMNI OF HIGH SCHOOL AT ANNUAL DINNER

With one of the largest crowds in the history of the event, the Gettysburg high school Alumni association conducted its 44th anniversary banquet and dance Wednesday evening at the high school building. President LeRoy H. Winebrenner announced there were 230 persons in attendance including 46 members of the graduating class.

The seniors were welcomed into the association during a program which featured class reunions starting with a two-member gathering of the class that graduated 60 years ago.

Mrs. Charles B. Dougherty and Miss Minnie Spangler kept intact their record of never having missed a banquet of the association and were the only representatives of the class of 1886 in attendance. Mrs. Dougherty responded to the introduction by President Winebrenner.

White Roses For Old Grads
Four alumni were on hand for the 50th anniversary reunion of the class of 1896. They were Miss Alice Williams, and Miss Harriet Krauth of Gettysburg; Mrs. Elsie Fahrman of Stallsburgh; of Covington, Ky., and Mrs. Gertrude Hunter of Emmitsburg.

Miss Williams was the spokesman for the group and announced the banquet was being held on the exact date of the class's graduation exercises 50 years ago. The class, which numbered nine at graduation, was the first taught here by the late Miss Helen Cope.

The alumni association presented white roses to the members present of the class of 1896 and 1896. Mrs. Ellen Tipton Buehler made the presentations.

The class of 1901 had two members present with Mrs. Elsie Wentz Irvin as spokeswoman and Paul Spangler introduced members of his class of 1916. There were seven of the original group of 35 at the banquet.

'21 Stars 25th Reunion
Henry M. Scharf, '21, responded for the class of 1921 which was staging its 25th reunion. Fifteen of the 40 members of the class were present with High School Principal G. W. Lefever as their guest. Mr. Lefever began his teaching duties at the local high school when that class entered as freshmen, the alumni were told.

The twentieth reunion of the class of 1926 brought out only nine girls from the 76 who graduated that year. They were introduced by Mrs. Luella Snider Baumgardner of Littlestown. She said that class was the first to graduate from the present high school and the last to be taught by Miss Helen Cope. More (Please Turn to Page 2)

Optional Service For Men In Reserves

Men enrolled in the Enlisted and Officer Reserve Corps will not have to leave their jobs to serve periods of military training, Colonel H. G. Paullin, commanding the First Military Area announced today.

Employers were assured that these men will not be compelled to leave work this summer to attend summer camps. The service will be voluntary. If the man wishes to attend summer camp he may but he will not be compelled to do so, Colonel Paullin said.

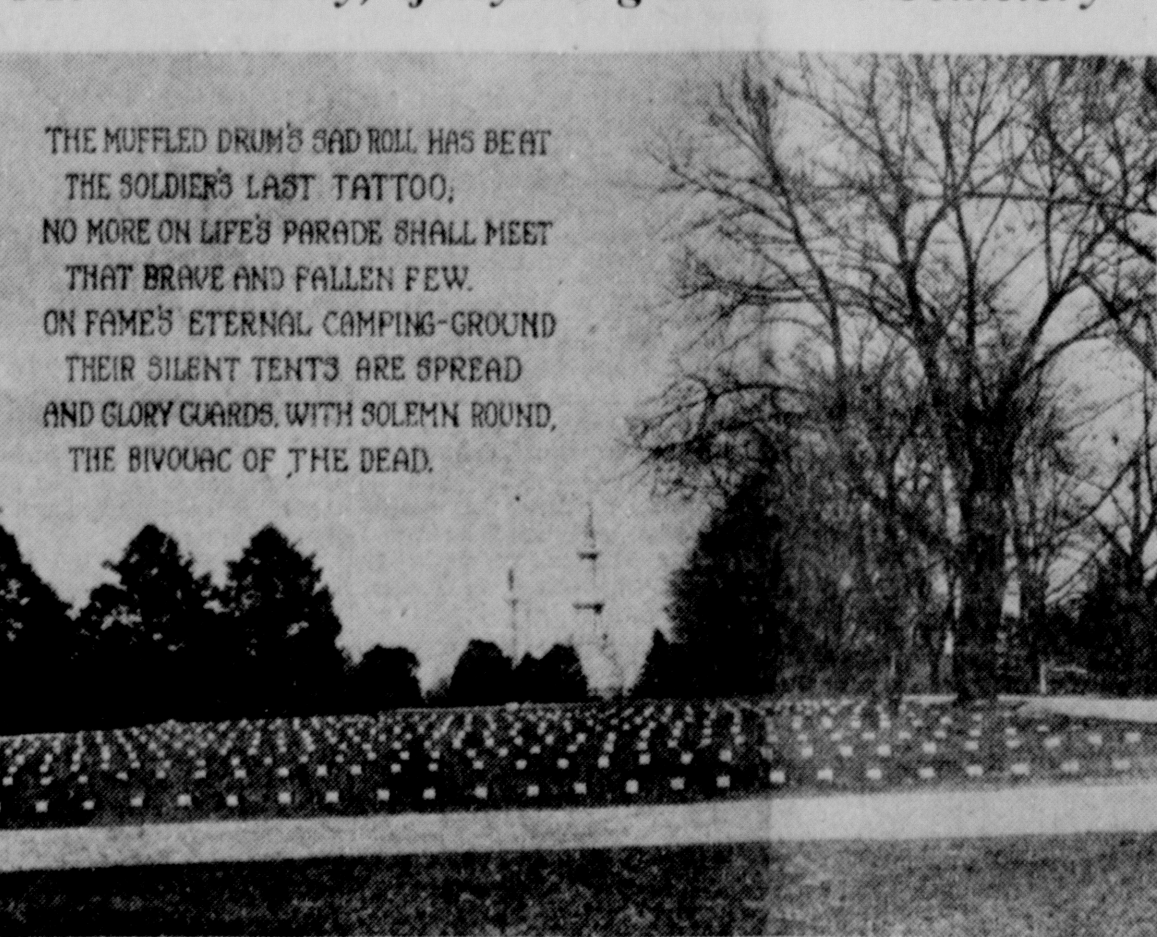

An Enlisted Reservist normally signs up for a definite term in the reserves and during that time may, if he desires, take advantage of military training and special schooling which the army plans to offer, but he will not be forced to undergo the training. He has the option, at the end of his reserve "ditch" of re-enlisting or of severing his connection with the reserve. The same conditions apply to Reserve Officers, except that their commissions are limited to five-year terms.

Memorial Day

By EDGAR A. GUEST

What in memory to do?

What in memory to say?

All their courage to review,

All the lovely flowers of May,

All the bugles sounding taps,

All the flags in reverence flown,

Vain if we who live relapse

Into ways which they'd disown.

With the first cold wind the wreath

Withers on the grassy mound,

He who slumbers underneath

Cannot bear the bugles sound.

All the speeches that are made

Are but strings of words at most,

Lest the living unafraid

Stand, as they, at Freedom's post.

Not for just a flowered grave

Dared these gallant souls to die,

Or for little flags to wave

One bright morning where they lie;

But, for something greater far:

Freedom, earth and sky and sea!

And in vain our tributes are

If as brave we fail to be.

Nation Pays Tribute To Its Soldier Dead Of Many Wars

Washington, May 30 (AP)—From President to humble citizen, America honored on this Memorial Day its dead of every war.

President Truman arranged to lay a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery at 9 a. m. EST. It was not an occasion for an address but one of solemn, silent tribute.

Patriotic, civic and veterans organizations waited to place their own flowers beside the tomb. Throughout the cemetery, spread over a wooded hillside overlooking the Potomac and the national capital, Boy Scouts had placed flags on 70,000 graves.

At Arlington and in Washington, memorial exercises were scheduled all during the day. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, veterans' administrator, was to be the principal speaker at ceremonies in the Arlington amphitheater arranged for the early afternoon by the Grand Army of the Republic Memorial Day Corporation.

As part of the services, three army bombers were to swoop low and drop flowers on the resting places of soldier dead. A navy plane was sent out to sea to send an anchor of Buddy Poppies spinning into the waves.

The Marine Corps set its own observance for late afternoon, in front of the monument on Constitution avenue depicting the raising of the Stars and Stripes on Iwo Jima.

From Arlington, Mr. Truman planned to drive back to the White House, pick up the family, and take them to the White House yacht Williamsburg for a day on the Potomac.

LUTHERANS ASK RECALL OF U.S. VATICAN ENVOY

A protest against continuation of the practice of having a personal representative of the president of the United States at the Vatican was voted Wednesday afternoon at the concluding sessions of the 127th annual convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Maryland at the Church of the Abiding Presence at Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary.

The protest came in the form of a "memorial" to the convention of the United Lutheran Church of America to be held in October at Cleveland, asking that body to "protest to President Harry S. Truman the continued presence of a representative of the president of the United States at the Vatican."

Officials of the synodical convention said that the "memorial" was presented to get the matter on the floor of the Cleveland convention. All memorials from synodical groups must be acted upon at the biannual meetings of the ULCA, they added.

To Meet Here Again In 1947
The "memorial" also urged the national convention to "request the recall of Myron C. Taylor believing such representation is in violation of our constitutional form of government."

Originally scheduled to arrive on the floor in the report of the resolutions committee, the memorial was finally presented from the floor by the Rev. James T. Powers, of Baltimore, and seconded by Dr. Oscar S. Blackwelder, of Washington, D. C. It was adopted "unanimously," officials of the convention said. The resolutions committee failed to mention the matter in its report, according to press representatives of the convention.

The Synod voted to hold its 1947 convention at the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary.

A report by the Rev. Augustus Hackman, of Baltimore, Synodical director of Lutheran World Action disclosed that approximately $76,000 has been raised already in the synod for Lutheran World Action, a drive currently being conducted to raise funds for the rehabilitation of the Lutheran church in Europe.

Bricker Appeals For End Of "Ineptitudes" In U.S. Direction Of Economics

EX-GOVERNOR BRICKER

Bricker's Address

The complete text of Ex-Governor John W. Bricker's address in the Gettysburg National Cemetery this afternoon follows:

Today we are gathered at one of our greatest national shrines. Once more we honor our heroic dead who fell and sleep here. We recall with solemn pride that this, their resting place, was dedicated to the cause of liberty and free representative government. We rejoice that there are no longer any sectional differences that threaten our national unity and our domestic peace.

Since the close of the bloody conflict which began here on July 1, 1863, we of the North and the South have marched shoulder to shoulder in three wars against external enemies. In complete national unity of resolution and effort, we have emerged victorious from them all.

Almost one year ago now we ended the most deadly and costly of all our wars. Every segment of our society subordinated personal interests for the common cause. Almost overnight, it seems, we converted this nation from peacetime pursuits and an incredible weakness to a nation of invincible military might. History cannot overstate the magnitude of our united effort as a free nation.

Need National Unity
The national unity which served us so well in war is equally urgent in peace. We do not have such unity now. We do not have unity of purpose as a nation.

We are confused and bewildered both in domestic and foreign policy. At the very moment when the world is looking to America for leadership in providing political and economic stability, we present a picture of vacillation and indecision.

Our essential difficulty does not lie in the inevitable differences which will arise as to the methods of solving national problems. Rather it arises from a serious conflict in political philosophy and purpose. The great American President who dedicated this shrine expressed the conviction that it is the function of Government—not to direct the lives of people—but to provide a fair chance for all the race of life. That concept of government is challenged today by those who would make this government supreme over the lives of men. The principle of "Government by the Consent of the Governed" written into our American Declaration of Independence, has been robbed of its vitality. And because there are many in high places who have lost faith in the capacity of men and women to exercise wise, independent judgment in their economic and social relationships—this nation now stands on

New Decorations Are On Display

New street decorations were on display for Memorial day today and the parade and observance this afternoon only because a borough crew worked all night to get them in place.

The decorations were ordered by the borough council several weeks ago. They arrived at 5 p. m. Wednesday. The crew, in charge of Harry Turner, foreman, went right at the job of placing them, and worked until all were up. The old decorations, used for the past several years, were badly faded and discolored.

Declaring that America stands at the crossroads between collectivism and "freedom under law," former Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio in his Memorial Day address in the National cemetery here this afternoon called for an end to the "ineptitudes of political management of our economic affairs" to bring order out of the chaos of post-war America.

First paying tribute to "our heroic dead who fell and sleep here," Governor Bricker declared "History cannot overstate the magnitude of our united effort as a free nation in World War II."

Pointing then to the "confusion" in our domestic and foreign policy, Governor Bricker commended President Truman for taking decisive action in the strike crisis but declared "the proposal which he has offered is wholly incompatible with the fundamental concepts of a free society. The suggestion for drafting strikers into the army is abhorrent to the American way of life."

Must Examine Labor Policies
He called upon the nation to examine the basic premises of its labor policy but warned that the right to strike must be safeguarded as one of labor's rights. He also demanded that the "current policy of governmental management of labor relations" be abandoned.

Governor Bricker's address was the climax of Gettysburg's Memorial Day celebration. The former Ohio governor arrived here by auto from Harrisburg about 10:30 o'clock and was greeted at the Hotel Gettysburg by members of the local Memorial Day committee and lunched with them at the hotel before going to the cemetery.

Gettysburg's Memorial Day parade moved at 2:30 o'clock and events at the cemetery followed the established procedure.

Gross Presides
After the procession reached the cemetery, the veterans' organizations conducted their memorial rituals and then the more than 1,000 public and parochial school children scattered flowers over the graves of the soldier dead while the Gettysburg high school band played "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

Bricker Predicts PAC Defeat In Ohio

Ex-Governor John M. Bricker pointed out this morning that "this is not the time to speak of politics," but "you can say this much, we'll defeat the PAC in Ohio."

The former governor, who was speaker at the annual Memorial Day exercises here this afternoon, was asked his opinion of the political situation, immediately upon his arrival here, by a Times reporter. Declaring that the day was not right for politics, "we are here to celebrate Memorial Day," the former governor, now candidate for the U. S. Senate in Ohio, pointed out that in the primaries in that state, "the Republican candidate received more votes on a ticket on which he was the only one candidate running for office than did all four Democratic candidates including the PAC backed man."

State Police Officer Is Bricker's Aide

Col. Leo McMahon, of the Pennsylvania state police, accompanied Former Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio to Gettysburg this morning from Harrisburg and will serve as his personal aide while the Memorial Day speaker is here. Lt. McMahon was appointed by Governor Martin to accompany the former Ohio chief executive to Gettysburg. Eight state policemen from nearby sub-stations have been ordered to Gettysburg to assist the local detail in handling Memorial Day crowds here today.

Civil Service Lists New Examinations

The Civil Service Commission announced today that examinations will soon be held for probational appointments to forester and range conservationist positions in the Department of Agriculture and the Department of the Interior. These positions pay $2,320 a year and are located throughout the country, chiefly in the western part of the United States. Most of the vacancies are in the Department of Agriculture.

In addition to qualifying in the written test, persons applying for the examinations must show the completion of specified courses of study in the appropriate subjects. Applications will be accepted, however, from senior students who will complete these courses before December 31, 1946. No experience is required for this examination. The maximum age limit of 35 years will be waived for persons entitled to veteran preference.

Closing date for acceptance of applications is June 8, 1946. Application Card Form 5000-AB must be received in the Commission's Washington office on or before that date.

Interested persons should ask for further information and get card Form 5000-AB from the Commission's local secretary, Jesse E. Snyder, at the Gettysburg post office, or from most first- and second-class post office, Civil Service Regional Offices, or the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

Here And There

News Collected At Random

Gettysburg's fame as a "mosquito center" is far reaching and spreading.

Waldo Sherman, of Elkins, West Virginia, addressed the following communication to us today:

"As you've noticed by the enclosed clipping West Virginia has a shortage of mosquitoes. Since Gettysburg is noted for a certain type of 'Dive Bomber' mosquitoes we are wondering if you could ration us a few hundred as our supply is running low."

"Please give us an immediate reply as our need is desperate."

The clipping, referred to by Mr. Sherman, was a dispatch from Charleston, West Va., which reads as follows:

"West Virginia is short on one tourist commodity—and proud of it."

"From what the advertising and publicity commission has to say, vacation areas in the state are as hard up for mosquitoes as they are for nylon."

"The Commission has brought forth 'expert' testimony to back up that boast."

Letter to the Editor

Gettysburg, Pa. May 7, 1946

Dear Sir:

In this evening's issue of your local paper, I read of the C. of C. answer to the Sons of Union Veterans' protest against terming the Civil War "The War Between the States."

Our Constitution specifically provides that "no state can make war against another," therefore the Sons of Veterans are right. If Lincoln in his Gettysburg Address, would have said, "now we are engaged in a war between the states," his masterful address would have been ruined. Lincoln did say, "now we are engaged in a great civil war."

The local Chamber of Commerce either doesn't know the Constitution, or it wants to disregard facts for commercial reasons only.

If the Southern people feel "antagonized" at the truthful term "civil war" that is unfortunate. Both of my grandfathers fought on opposite sides and both agreed that the Civil War was this nation's greatest tragedy.

As a member of the Sons of Union Veterans, I feel that it is "high time" that people who should know better ought to start calling a spade a spade.

Our National Department never did condone the term "War Between the States." The South seceded from the Union, which of course constituted a Rebellion resulting in "Civil War" thereby placing the Southern people in their proper class—"Rebels."

To use the term "War Between the States" rather sounds better and "softer" than the fact that they rebelled against the U. S. government. We don't want to antagonize the South, the Civil War is over, with one nation indivisible and one flag. The local C. of C. is too young and inexperienced to be so sure that the good people of the South would curtail their coming here because of the truthful mention of "Civil War."

Our Thirteen Colonies rebelled against England causing the Amer-dead center. The conflict about OPA, about labor regulation, about agricultural and industrial policy is essentially a conflict which centers on the issue of planned economy vs. economic and political freedom under law.

Reset By Strikes

This no better illustrated than in the field of labor-management relations. Ever since the surrender of Japan, this nation has been beset with one strike after another. At the very time when industrial production is more desperately needed than ever before to head off the specter of inflation, the wheels of industry have been slowing down. Last week they came almost to a complete stop. There are those who say this is inevitable after war. That is but a superficial answer. It ignores the basic fact that government policy itself is at the root of the problem.

For a long time now, this nation has been without an effective and just industrial relations policy. Our national government has improvised from day to day. It has tried one expedient after another to meet constantly arising crises. And it has, through one-sided legislative policies, inequitably administered, actually fanned the flames of industrial discord.

The national calamity which the leaders of the Rail strike almost precipitated was the inevitable result of a long continued pursuit of ulterior political aims combined with ineptitudes of political management of our economic affairs.

The rail strike has been settled and this nation is greatly relieved. But in our relief there is the danger of a new complacency. The basic causes of industrial unrest have not been removed. Indeed, only another temporary expedient has been offered by the executive branch of government. And even this expedient involves governmental regimentation in the most hideous form which has yet been proposed.

Urges Plain Speaking

This is a time for clear thinking and plain speaking. And it is a time when we must consider the labor problem in terms of basic principles. I propose to express my views freely.

First of all, the President of the United States is to be commended for taking a positive, even though belated position. But the proposal which he has offered is wholly incompatible with the fundamental concepts of a free society. The suggestion for drafting strikers into the army is abhorrent to the American way of life. The army never has been, and it should not be now, used for punitive purposes. Service to one's country under the flag is an honorable status. It should never be degraded from the noble spirit in which those who lie here served. Nor should military service, while the country is considered at war only on the basis of a legal fiction, be used as a guise for that which is essentially involuntary servitude. We adopted a constitution to avert such ends. The rank and file of labor in America, who have served this nation well in war and peace should not be made to suffer such constitutional infractions because of the unwise judgment of their leaders.

Scores "Confiscation"

Moreover, the proposal to siphon the profits of seized industries into the United States Treasury is outright confiscation. It was undoubtedly intended to appease labor for the drastic proposal to draft strikers into the army. But it may well be regarded as the opening wedge for nationalization of industry and the establishment of a socialist state in America.

Second, this nation needs to examine the basic premises of labor policy. The right to strike is one of those premises. It is recognized by law and I believe it should be safeguarded. But it should not be unlimited when the public interest is at stake. There was a time when combinations of capital in restraint of trade and commerce became prejudicial to the public interest. To protect that public interest, we enacted the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. We have reached the time when combinations of labor in nationwide industries are engaged in restraint of trade and commerce and are prejudicial to the public interest. We need legislation to prevent this also; and they too should provide administrative, not military, methods of enforcement. The right to strike in a particular plant is one thing. The right to strike in a nationwide industry involving peril to our national life is something entirely different.

Full, Free Bargaining

Third, we need to abandon the current policy of governmental management of labor relations. In its place we should restore full and free collective bargaining between management and labor. We do not now have genuine collective bargaining—and we have not had it for a long time. The unbalanced provisions of the Wagner Labor Relations Act are a part of this problem. The act purports to guarantee free bargaining. It protects labor against the abuses of management, but it does not protect management or the public.

than 50 per cent of that class entered the teaching profession, Mrs. Baumgardner said.

The class of 1931 had nine present. They were introduced by Mrs. Eleanor Romberger Kramer; the tenth reunion class of 1936 had only four present with George Amick as their spokesman, while Joseph Berger spoke for the nine members of the class of 1941 in attendance.

Scholarship Awards

The annual presentation of alumni scholarship awards was made by Mrs. Buehler to Miss Betty Leeming, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Leeming of the Hoffman orphanage, and Miss Miriam Keeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Keeney, East Broadway. As valedictorian, Miss Leeming received a check for $15. The salutatorian's prize was $10.

With President Winebrenner presiding, the program opened with the blessing by Miss Alice Williams of the class of 1896. Mrs. Genevieve Cluck Siegal led the group in singing "America" and also led group singing during the evening.

The seniors were formally welcomed into the association by President Winebrenner and Walter Scott Mountain, 3rd, the senior class president, responded for the graduating class. Two copies of the current edition of The Cannon-aid, high school annual, were presented to the alumni organization by two members of its staff, Miss Keeney and Kathleen Plattenburg. Alumni awards were presented and the reunion classes were introduced.

President Winebrenner thanked the members of the committees and all others who contributed to the success of the annual gathering and the program closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Greensburg, Pa., May 30 (P)—A mistrial was granted in three arson cases against John Edward Lauffer, 20, of Salem township, after a courtroom spectator yesterday was heard discussing the testimony within hearing of the jurors.

against the abuses of labor. It provides privilege for one end and responsibility for the other—but it does not provide privileges and responsibilities for both. It must be revised at the earliest possible date and the job must be started now—not six months hence. Moreover, the practice of this government in overriding established labor law must cease. The Railway Labor Act was not sabotaged by labor leaders alone. It was sabotaged by the executive branch of the federal government when the unions were given more than the fact-finding boards had recommended. Obedience to and respect for law must begin with the government itself.

Critical Labor Problem

I have referred to our current labor problem only because it is extremely critical and because it illustrates our need for national unity of purpose. Decision and action are imperative. We must decide which way we will go. One way is freedom under law—the other is collectivism. The choice must be made now. We cannot longer continue half free and half collectivist. On this hallowed ground, let us resolve to keep this nation free. Let us here solemnly reaffirm our faith in Democracy and our Republican form of Government.

The heroic dead who lie here and the soldiers of all our wars, both living and dead, have paid a tremendous price to preserve for us a free society—a society which recognizes the worth and sovereignty of the human soul—a society which stresses the right and responsibilities of the man himself—a society which holds that government is the servant of men and not their master—a society which has faith in itself and its capacity for self-government.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 30 (AP)—Every time a report comes in on the University of Oklahoma's high school baseball tournament, it leads to some wondering why other colleges don't imitate it. . . . Of course, several states have high school tournaments, but they aren't so big and don't sound like so much fun. . . . This year, for instance, Oklahoma had 19 class "A" teams and 63 in class "B" playing for three days on nine diamonds. . . . They play good ball, too, and the place is all clouded up with professional scouts. . . . The boys bring cots and bedding and sleep in the university field house and stadium. The university squad does the umpiring. . . . Publicist Harold Keith explains: "The team whose pitcher has the most rubbery arm and the team which can live on hamburgers and red soda pop for three days and still play inspired baseball usually wins. It's a tough tourney on pitchers (who sometimes work four or five games in three days) but nobody complains. They're having too much fun."

SHORTS AND SHELLS

Bill Kennedy, who pitches portside for Rocky Mount, N. C., in the Coastal Plain league, is drawing even bigger raves than the Giants' "find," Montia Kennedy. . . . Bill, who was dropped from the Cardinals system, had whiffed 86 batters in 49 innings (as of last week) with as many as 19 strikeouts in one game. He couldn't get a strikeout record because Andy Tomasic of Kingston fanned 22 Tarboro batters one night.

CORRECTION PLEASE

While Ernie Lanigan's statement that the longest completed baseball game was a 30-inning affair in Coeburn, Va., has dug up an old tome, "ballroom," that lists a 36-inning tussle between the victors and elicits at Columbus, O., the same year.

The book doesn't give the score or other details.

END OF THE LINE

Sweden's Lennart Strand figures that Marcel Hansenne of France, who ran here with little success last winter, is too old at 29 to improve his mile performances. . . . Bobo Newsom says he has a complaint to enter with the coal miners union; "I have to throw three strikes to get one man out."

FERRISS GETS EIGHTH WIN BY SHUTOUT ROUTE

By JOE REICHLER
(AP Sports Writer)

Even Dave (Boo) Ferriss' severest critics agreed today that the Boston Red Sox' sensational righthander was no mere first-year "morning glory."

Exactly five weeks ago, after the ex-army air force sergeant was driven from the mound under a barrage of base hits for the second straight time, fears were openly expressed that the soft-spoken Mississippian, who last year won 21 games in his first big league campaign, might be in for a rough season in 1946.

Saved from defeats in his first two starts only because of the slugging prowess of his mates, Ferriss went on to roll up seven straight victories in less than a month's time to prove conclusively that he was not haunted by the sophomore jinx that has tripped up many a first-year wonder.

Yesterday he made it eight in a row by blanking the Philadelphia Athletics 2-0 to duplicate his freshman season performance when he won his first eight decisions.

The Yanks called on their 42-year-old standby, Charley Ruffing, to stave off Washington's bid to oust them from second place, and old Rufus the Red responded with a brilliant three-hit 4-0 victory over the Senators. It was Ruffing's third straight without a defeat this season and the 26th victory of his American league career.

Southpaw Vic Lombardi became the first National league pitcher to record seven triumphs when he throttled the New York Giants on five hits in pitching the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers to a 5-1 victory.

The Cards, with Pitcher Harry Brecheen, and Outfielder Terry Moore collaborating, whipped the Cubs, 5-2.

Detroit's Hal Newhouser joined Ferriss as the majors' only eight-game winners when he pitched the Tigers to a 4-1 decision over the Cleveland Indians.

Phillies Win

The Cincinnati Reds replaced the Cubs in third place by edging out 7-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Schoolboy Rowe held the Boston Braves to five hits under the arc lights to pitch the Philadelphia Phillies to a 3-1 triumph.

Trenton's Lead In Interstate Boosted

(By The Associated Press)
Trenton's interstate league lead was boosted to three full games by virtue of the Giants' twin victory over Allentown last night, 3-2 and 4-2.

Sunbury climbed into second place, just five percentage points ahead of Wilmington, in defeating Lancaster in a slugfest, 14-13.

Wilmington pushed York deeper into the cellar with a double win, 7-6 and 8-2, while Hagerstown tumbled from second to fourth place in losing, 5-2, to Harrisburg.

Chapman Signs New Contract; Kills Rumor

Philadelphia, May 30 (AP)—Ben Chapman has inked a 1947 contract to spike rumors that he was on his way out as manager of the still last-place Philadelphia Phillies.

The 37-year-old Blue Jays mastermind—former major league infielder, outfielder and pitcher—took over the reins on June 29, 1945, when the Phils were deep in the National league cellar. He hasn't been able to pull them out of the dungeon yet—thus the reason for the "he's through" rumors.

Phil's General Manager Herb Pennock announced the retention of Chapman last night. "We're convinced Ben is doing a fine job with the Phils," Pennock said, "and we definitely wanted him to stay."

Manufacture of floor and wall tile has been greatly speeded up since 1920 through the widespread use of kilns which operate continuously.

Today's Talk

PRAISE WHERE PRAISE IS DUE

He who praises another enriches himself far more than he does the one praised. To praise is an investment in happiness. Simply enough said, but what a rare virtue it is, anyway!

When Emerson wrote to Walt Whitman—when his first book, "Leaves of Grass," was first published, and so many condemned it—imagine what a lift it was to him to have so great a man say: "I am not blind to the worth of the wonderful gift of Leaves of Grass. . . . I give you joy of your free and brave thought. I have great joy in it. I find incomparable things said incomparably well, as they must be. . . . I greet you at the beginning of a great career."

W. Robertson Nicholl, for long years the famous editor of the British Weekly, and a man who never tired of encouraging new writers, said this: "I for one mean to indulge in the 'noble pleasure of praising' and to enjoy the triumphs of my friends to the last laurel leaf."

It was Thomas Hardy who once said that if it had not been for the praise of George Meredith he would probably never have adopted a literary career. Many another author owes to such encouragement the success later attained. Richard Harding Davis had the habit of writing, or writing, new writers whose contributions seemed worthy to him.

Richard La Gallienne once said that "Criticism is the art of praise." But he said that some fifty years ago! From many of the criticisms that I read these days it gives one the impression that criticism is the art of tearing a play, movie, or book into shreds!

Sincere praise to the worthy is manna to the soul! Even a race horse runs a better race after a pat on the nose. And what a joyous look that dog of yours gives to you after you have patted and praised him. It was largely Hamlin Garland's praise of Stephen Crane that enticed a publisher to publish Crane's "Red Badge of Courage," which is now an American classic—and was largely written before Crane was of age!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Ingrid Bergman"

CRISIS MAY PASS WITHOUT SINGLE NEW LABOR LAW

Washington, May 30 (AP)—Hedging with a couple of "ifs," some Congress members began to speculate today that the capitol storm over strikes may not produce a single new labor law.

The hotly-disputed draft section already has been ripped out of President Truman's emergency bill. There were too many uncertainties for flat predictions, but the possibility of a complete blow-over was being widely if privately talked. Settlement of the soft coal strike obviously has taken off the main heat.

The Big "Ifs" are:

1. Whether President Truman signs into law the Case Strike Control bill, which a thumping 230 to

GIRLS GATHER PAPER

106 House vote sent to him yesterday. Several Democrats have said he will veto it.

2. Whether the threatened June 15 maritime strike develops a new "crisis."

On the Case bill, the President is getting conflicting advice from Legation and others and meanwhile is keeping his own counsel. Secretary of Labor Schwelmbach told reporters he may recommend a veto.

The House vote yesterday was large enough to override a veto (two-thirds are needed), but the Senate's last Saturday was not. Chairman Murray (D-Mont) of the Senate Labor committee, who frankly wants a veto, predicted the Senate would sustain Mr. Truman if he takes that course.

Lawmakers generally agreed that developments in the maritime dispute are bound up with the future of the President's emergency bill.

Heart of Bill Cut Out

The Senate, by a 70 to 13 vote, late yesterday cut out what some legislators consider the heart of that bill—the provision for drafting into the army those who strike against government-seized plants. Democratic Leader Barkley (KY) told reporters that whether the maritime dispute is settled "will determine my course" when the Senate goes back to work on the measure tomorrow.

Barkley said there were reasons to believe the dispute might be settled by then and that if it is he will not object to the bill's going back

Siamese Complaint Not To Reach U.N.

New York, May 30 (AP)—A spokesman for Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary General, said Wednesday Lie would not put before the U. N. Security Council a Siamese allegation that French soldiers have seized Siamese territory in "unjustified aggression."

The spokesman pointed out that the case could be brought up by any member of the Security Council who desired to do so but there had been no word from any council member that such action would be taken.

It was the first time that a non-member of the United Nations had appealed to the world peace keeping agency, and the complaint thus presented the organization with a to committee. There, he added, members could "perfect" the measure in an atmosphere free from "heat and passion."

But in Congressional practice, once a bill is returned to a committee from the floor it usually stays there. In the legislative jargon, it is "pigeon-holed."

Furthermore, Congress is aiming at getting away for a summer recess early in July.

70 Years in Gettysburg
By DR. HENRY STEWART
Organ Grinders

A spring diversion to which we kids looked forward was the appearance of the (usually Italian) organ grinders with their monkeys, trained to collect the pennies, with a tip of the hat. "Dancing" bears were also an occasional diversion.

For the older folks, Spring brought, for many years, a trio of Italian musicians—harp and two violins—"Joe" was the leader, and he was really very good, even making allowance for our easily satisfied ears. His rendition of "Listen to the Mocking Bird" is still, I venture to say, remembered by some of us.

Spring also usually brought a flock of itinerant umbrella menders, and frequent caravans of gypsies—from one to a number of wagons—camped near town. The men were occupied with horse trading, and the women in their picturesque dress, begging or telling fortunes through the town.

Played Cricket Here

Returning to the sports, we had, on Baltimore Hill, a short interlude of cricket—introduced to us by Alvin P. Seilhammer, a summer visitor from New York, whose mother had been a Gettysburg girl. It did not take a very strong hold. As else where noted, in later years he returned to town to become the editor of our first daily paper.

An Intuition of long ago was the "Town Path."

The rationale of the name was never clear. It led from the southern foot of the Reformed hill (the blind end of Stratton street) nearly south along the fence of the big Culp field, then more south-easterly past the foot of Culp's Hill—where the smaller fry branched off to swim in the pool of the "Two Rocks," and the bigger boys continued on along Rock Creek to the "Swimming Hole," near Spangler's Spring.

Each year we succeeded in erecting a dam which raised the depth of water to well "over-head" (it was of course swept away each year by the ice) and a conveniently located rock on the Eastern bank gave very respectable diving facilities.

A not-pleasant accompaniment of the swimming exercise was "chaw-beef"—getting the knots out of your cloths to the accompaniment of that inspiring chant by the on-lookers. This was all "in the raw"—bathing suits had not made their appearance.

Winter Sports

Skating facilities were the "Student's Pond," north of the path connecting the Preparatory department and the College building. This formed a dam for the accumulation of surface waters, and had a sluice which drained into the water course, usually dry in summer, that led down the alley west of Carlisle street, (still a source of trouble for Carlisle street cellars) into the Tiber (Steven's run.) This gate was closed at the beginning of winter and soon produced a good sized skating area—often used when there was not time to go to the Spring's hotel dam, more than a mile west of town, on Willoughby Run. This had been built to give boating facilities to the guests of the Spring's hotel, in the hey-day of its existence, and was the place of choice, when time was available. Some skating was done on Rock creek, but not much, for there were few places that offered enough unbroken distance.

Another skating facility was the first railroad cut on the "Tape-worm." There had been, over the years, considerable caving in of its banks, for some reason, mostly at the ends, which allowed the accumulation of enough surface water to give a fairly adequate area.

Coasting

How we used the streets for that purpose! I have often wondered how we got away with it without more accidents—I don't remember any really very serious one.

The Reformed Hill—across Middle, York and Railroad streets—the south side of Baltimore Hill, both sides of Cemetery hill, and Haupt's hill, the Fairfield road (Middle street,) from the ridge.

Almost everything in the shape of a sled—from single to bob-sleds, carrying eight to ten persons. "Belly bumping" was the favorite style, and how our parents did rail against the results of guiding the sled by digging in the toes, in fact many

33 RACE TODAY AT INDIANAPOLIS

Indianapolis, May 30 (AP)—Thirty-three men old enough to know what they were doing wheeled hopped-up, streamlined race cars onto the Indianapolis Speedway bricks today for a 500-mile race that promised to be the fastest since the International sweepstakes started in 1911.

It was the 30th running of the event, halted by war since 1941.

The weather forecast for the day was partly cloudy and warm.

Sugar Violations Charged To 10 Men

Cleveland, May 30 (AP)—Ten men charged with illegal sugar operations pleaded innocent and posted bonds in federal court yesterday.

They were indicted May 15 on charges of violating OPA price ceilings and dealing in counterfeit ration stamps. The deals, the government charges, involved 250,000 pounds of sugar and 43,440 fake stamps.

Bond of $7,500 was set for Arthur Keristy of Darlington, Pa.; $3,000 for Marc A. Byrd, president of the Saegertown (Pa.) Mineral Water Co., and Leo S. Wardenga, an Erie (Pa.) Baker; and $1,500 for Morris Firman, Erie, Pa., produce dealer.

boy's shoes were made with copper tipped toes.

A variation of coasting which obviated the uphill climb, was hooking onto sleighs—you could often see three or four sleds hitched to one sleigh—though we were not always welcome—as the drivers sometimes demonstrated with their whips.

(To Be Continued.)

This was the fifteenth race for Hepburn but the field, averaging 36 years old, was studded with names long familiar to speedway fans. It was the fifteenth race, too, for Cliff Bergere of Indianapolis, one-time Hollywood stunt man; Chet Miller of Glendale, Calif., and Russell Snowberger of Detroit.

The contract, signed by Lewis with a pen borrowed from Mr. Truman, is good only for the period of government operation.

Operators Chagrined
But the operators, who had tried in vain for two months to wangle a contract out of the bushy-browed United Mine Workers' chief, made little effort to hide their chagrin over the terms.

One important producer said privately he feared some "marginal" mines would have to shut down when relinquished by the government. And he added the "hunch" that many others would like to "close up and go fishing."

John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, termed the government contract the forerunner of royalty demands on every other industry.

"Defeat for U. S."
"It is a victory for Lewis over the government and a defeat for the American people, who must foot the bill," said Battle in a statement.

Another industry spokesman, declining to permit use of his name, predicted that the contract terms would add 35 to 50 cents to the cost of a ton of coal. The only bright spot any operator would acknowledge was the fact that because the government negotiated the contract, the Office of Price Administration might be more likely to entertain requests for price relief to offset the extra production costs.

One government official in a position to know said he is confident the contract comes within the government's wage-price policy.

Whether the operators eventually will accept the terms appeared to hinge on these determinations:

1. Amount of a price increase OPA will grant.

2. The cost of adopting the minimum safety standards to be set up by the Federal Bureau of Mines. This figure may not be known for 30 days.

Costly Strike
3. The actual number of foremen to be unionized under the pattern provided by a National Labor Relations Board decision earlier this year.

The strike, which began April 1 without much flurry because of the sizeable stockpiles of coal, cost the miners $160,000,000 in wages, according to estimates of the Solid Fuels Administration.

SPA guessed, too, that it cost the operators $278,000,000 in gross income from coal that wasn't mined—and a net profit of about $14,000,000.

Railroads lost some $178,000,000 in coal freight charges, and the nation lost 89,400,000 tons of fuel.

coal as an industrial fuel could offset higher operating cost through price increases more readily than hard coal which is used primarily in homes and must meet the competition of heating oil.

Miners' Demands

The government has not taken over the anthracite mines and no government mediators have been assisting in the contract negotiations which began May 10.

The miners are seeking among other demands a shorter work week, and an increase in wages rates; establishment of a health and welfare fund; adjustment of vacation; holiday; overtime and severance compensation; and observance of occupational disease laws. The union also has asked that mine supervisors be permitted to join the UMW.

Kennedy said the demands had not "been spelled out" during the talks, adding that no definite terms had been presented by the miners on wages and welfare fund.

MILK, BUTTER PRICES GO UP

Washington, May 30 (AP)—The government jolted housewives today with a $250,000,000-a-year price boost for dairy products—and predicted still another sharp hike if Congress cuts subsidies.

Stabilization Director Chester Bowles estimated that the public will pay a quarter of a billion dollars more for food annually as the result of price increases of one cent a quart for milk, about 11 cents a pound for butter and approximately six cents a pound for cheddar cheese.

Bowles announced last night that the new prices will become effective early in June. The exact amount of the increases will be fixed when the date is set.

The stabilization chief also directed OPA and the agriculture department to institute controls on the use of butterfat in the hope of increasing butter production. These controls include a ban on the sale of whipping cream, effective July 1, and establishment of price ceilings on bulk cream for the first time.

Ice cream manufacturers also were authorized to cut down on butterfat without trimming their prices. It is butterfat that gives ice cream its richness.

Electric Railroad Closed By Strike

Newark, N. J., May 30 (AP)—The Hudson and Manhattan railroad, electric all-passenger line carrying 115,000 persons daily between New York city and northern New Jersey, was shut down at 5 a. m. (EDT) today by a strike of trainmen and engineers.

The strike occurred less than 12 hours after President Truman issued an order setting up a fact-finding board to report to the White House within 30 days.

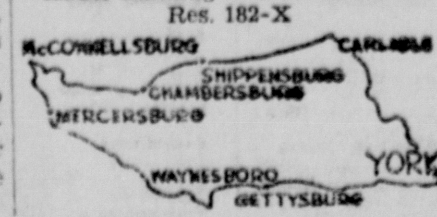

The strike was called, union leaders said, because the company had

FLOOD WATERS RECEDE TODAY; TOOK 11 LIVES

Harrisburg, Pa., May 30 (AP)—Murky flood waters receded slowly in Pennsylvania and lower New York today leaving behind a debris-littered devastation that took at least 11 lives and caused property and crop losses expected to exceed $3,000,000.

Fed by four days of continuous spring rains, the Susquehanna and Allegheny rivers and their tributaries had boiled over Monday in the worst flood since 1936.

Thousands were made temporarily homeless as the waters spilled into residential and business areas of scores of communities. Today life in once flood-bound towns returned slowly to normalcy.

Trucks Replace Boats

Williamsport, Pa., and Elmira, N. Y., were the two spots hit hardest by the racing waters of the Susquehanna, while the small community of Eldred, Pa., bore the brunt of the onslaught from the muddy Allegheny. Bradford and Port Allegeny in the Keystone state also dug out from the muck and mud deposited by the western river.

High-wheeled army trucks moved through the streets of Williamsport today replacing the boats that had traversed the city's main streets since Tuesday. The trucks brought in supplies and helped to haul out water-logged merchandise from stores caught in the rush of water that at one time covered two-thirds of the city.

At Sunbury, Pa., where the raging waters ripped a hole in a railroad embankment to flood the business section, residents worked diligently to plug the gap with sand bags and dirt hauled from nearby hills.

Highway workers in both Pennsylvania and New York were quick to open most of the main routes to traffic after the swift running streams had washed out the roadbeds in low-lying sections. Few bridges were damaged, though several were put out of commission when water made the approaches impassable.

Crop Damage Severe

Red Cross workers provided shelter for hundreds of families forced out of their homes by the swollen streams.

Along the north branch of the Susquehanna dikes built after the disastrous 1936 flood kept the turbulent waters out of the populous Wyoming Valley, Pa.

Health department officials in the two states said there were no indications of serious illnesses as a

Philly Truckers' Strike Settled

Philadelphia, May 30 (AP)—Settlement of the 15-day strike of 370 AFL truck drivers employed by Philadelphia's three largest newspapers was announced at 7 a. m. (EDT) today by management and union spokesmen.

Representatives of the morning Inquirer and Record and the Evening Bulletin said a two-year joint contract was signed with Local 628, Philadelphia newspaper and magazine chauffeurs and handlers union (AFL), teamsters international and teamsters joint council.

"Normal deliveries will be resumed to homes and news stands by the Evening Bulletin today and the Inquirer and Record tonight," a union-management statement said.

The strike began May 16 and halted deliveries of the three papers result of the floods, but checks were being made on all drinking water as a precaution against possible typhoid outbreak.

Crop damage was severe, especially in Pennsylvania, where the heavy rainfall that preceded the floods caused many fields to wash out. Soil erosion was heavy in all sections and once-flooded fields dried out covered with a thick coating of silt and muck.

whose normal daily circulation is 1,500,000.

Philadelphians were able to buy newspapers only at the plants, or from newsboys who sold the 3-cent copies for premium prices.
